

Victory Ball Plans Feature Fine Show At Armory on Friday

American Legion Committee Banks
White Way Star As Master of Ceremonies—Miss McKee, Mae,
Radio Artist, Known Widely in Kingston, Will Be Featured—
Colored Dance Team From Harlem
To Entertain.

The chairman of the American Legion Victory Ball entertainment committee, Meyer Kaplan, following a meeting in the Memorial Building Monday night, announced that the show featuring the event at the new armory, North Manor avenue, Friday night will equal if not surpass the excellent vaudeville of last year.

Kaplan has booked his show through Al Rogers, New York theatrical expert, and this well-known showman has guaranteed the Legion that the program will be a huge success and a credit to the organization.

"I'm bringing the best talent available," said Rogers in communicating with Chairman Kaplan, and taking last year's show as a criterion, when Rogers promises something like this it means a lot.

As master of ceremonies, Rogers has procured Bernard Granville, a star of many Broadway productions, the latest being "Whistling in the Dark." Granville adds much to every program on which he appears and in introducing the various acts at the Victory Ball should bring much merriment to the large audience expected to be present.

Among the features he will introduce is that starring Winters and Moreno, one of the fastest colored dance teams on Broadway in their number "Hot from Harlem." These two artists are not new to Kingston folk. They appeared here last year for the Victory Ball and went over so big that Mr. Rogers decided to book them for a return engagement.

Willie Robyn, billed as Roxy's latest find, will come direct from Radio City to entertain and his presence should add much to the all star vaudeville bill.

One of the greatest dance teams on the Metropolitan stage, Shields and Higgins, has been engaged and will cancel an appearance on the Paramount Public vaudeville circuit to entertain at the armory.

Worth and Wynn, scenic comedians, who have the name of being two of the outstanding laugh producers in the leading theatres of New York, will furnish the comedy.

Mr. Rogers has another act as a surprise and will not announce it until the night of the ball.

Posture Miss Helen Mae.
Last but not least, there will be a Kingston star on the bill. Miss Helen Mae, featured artist every week on the Polish hour over WFAB, New York, will sing. She is regarded as one of the most talented sopranos on the air and according to critics is destined for an outstanding and bright career in the world of radio. Miss Mae has many friends in this city who will learn with pleasure of her appearance on the Legion Victory Ball program. She has arranged a group of songs that bring out the true quality of her voice and which she has sung a number of times over the radio. Harry Malsenheimer, local pianist, will accompany Miss Mae, and the rest of the artists.

Ticket sales for the Victory Ball indicate a record attendance for the show and dance, proceeds of which go for relief work among ex-servicemen. Two local orchestras, Zucca's and Molloy's, will play for dancing.

OVERTHROW FORESEEN OF SARRAUT CABINET
Paris, Nov. 7. (AP)—The overthrow of the cabinet of Premier Albert Sarraut shortly was said by party members to be certain as the result of a radical socialist breach with the government this morning.

A group, with War Minister Edouard Daladier, Interior Minister Camille Chautemps, Jules Adolphe Theodore Steeg, former cabinet minister, and others, present, overwhelmingly rejected the idea of the cabinet accepting center or right support instead of that of the old left wing, including the Socialists.

In all of the wards the vote was reported as being cast without incident. The police department had an officer on duty in all of the election districts. All of the city candidates were out bright and early this morning calling around at the various polling places and conferring with party workers. A number of automobiles were in use in all of the districts to bring out the vote.

National Ulster County Bank Had
Regular Business Day Monday
With Few Withdrawals—Confidence
Seen in New Institution.

The confidence which was displayed on the opening day of the National Ulster County Bank of Kingston was again in evidence Monday when the bank opened for the second day's business. Many people came to the institution to transfer their accounts to the newly organized bank and to have the necessary "bookkeeping" changes made but there were few who questioned the stability of the new organization. There was no tendency to make unusual withdrawals and the officers and directors were highly pleased with the spirit of cooperation which has been displayed since the opening.

In some instances depositors who have been financing their business through other means during the period the bank was closed have found it necessary to make rather heavy withdrawals at this time in order to clear up business affairs but in practically every instance they have expressed regret over the fact and have stated their intention to continue their banking with the newly organized bank.

Monday's business was normal. There were the customary withdrawals and the customary deposits. Much of the business transacted was the transfer of accounts to the new bank.

At no time since the opening Saturday morning has there been the least semblance of unusual withdrawals. On the other hand the directors have been complimented on the re-opening and assured of continued business by depositors.

Many of the people who visited the bank on the opening day and on Monday came to extend their congratulations and pledge their cooperation and continued business with the new bank. In any instance where a depositor desired to withdraw money their request was cheerfully complied with.

Future Citizens Like Walker For Mayor

High School Straw Voters Choose
Walker—Faculty Also Selects
Walker—Students Choose McKee;
Faculty Likes La Guardia.

How the future citizens of Kingston and vicinity would vote, were they accorded that privilege, was demonstrated at the Kingston High School this morning, when straw elections were held on the candidates for mayor of this city and New York City. In the contest for mayor of Kingston, the Republican candidate, Harry B. Walker, received 741 votes or the 648 votes garnered by E. Frank Flanagan, Democratic candidate. The faculty voting on the same candidates divided their selections as follows: Walker, 24, and Flanagan, 10.

In the New York city contest the results were for the students: McKee, 741; La Guardia, 363, and O'Brien, 262. The faculty voted on the same candidates with the result that La Guardia received 17, McKee, 14 and O'Brien, 4.

In the case of the student vote, rural students were allowed to vote on the Kingston candidates as well as upon the New York city contest.

Smoking Chimney Caused Fire Scare

This morning as Mrs. Preston Coddington entered her living room on the second floor of the four-story brick building at 15 West Strand it was to see smoke issuing from the door. She immediately poured water on the floor and called a neighbor to summon the fire department. When the fire department arrived it was found necessary to tear up some of the flooring to ascertain where the fire was originating. In the partition between the two buildings runs a brick chimney, and it was found when a fire was started in the stove in the adjoining building that the smoke poured out into the living room in the Coddington apartment.

Aside from damage to the floor here it was necessary to take up some of the flooring the damage was slight.

Farm Strikers Burn Railroad Bridge In Added Iowa Violence

Sheriff Refuses to Ask Governor for State Troops at Demand of Sioux
City Residents—Sheriff Thinks
Apprehensions—Milo Reno Sees Act
"Regrettable."

Des Moines, Iowa, Nov. 7. (AP)—New violence, attributed to the farm strike, flamed along the agricultural front in northwestern Iowa, bringing a more serious aspect to the anti-selling movement.

Another bridge was burned to the ground last night. It was a main line bridge of the Illinois Central Railroad near Meriden and was the second destroyed since the "farm war" began. The other was near James, Iowa, which was burned early yesterday.

Meanwhile, Sheriff William R. Rice of Woodbury county (Sioux City), refused to ask Governor Clyde Herring for state troops, despite demands from Sioux City residents that the militia be called out to help bring peace.

Sioux City residents who flew to Des Moines urged Governor Herring to call out the militia. The chief executive countered that only would he issue the call when the sheriff had said he couldn't handle the situation longer.

His townsmen put the question to the sheriff, who agreed to wire his request. Then he disappeared, not to be located. The wire had not been received early today.

Governor Herring summoned Iowa legislators from the affected district to hear their opinion that 95 percent of the farmers are opposed to picketing. Then he summoned John Chalmers, president of the Iowa Farmers Holiday Association. He put an appeal to him to demand peaceful recognition of the embargo. Chalmers agreed.

Sioux City markets reflected the embargo when livestock receipts were greatly reduced. Deputies guarded the Plymouth county courthouse when pickets threatened to storm the building.

A cache of axe handles and several long bridge planks with protruding spikes were found in picket camps near Council Bluffs. Railroad detectives rode trains and patrolled bridges.

Picketing was resumed in Polk county near Council Bluffs after county holiday members voted to attempt to stop all types of livestock shipments to the Omaha market and established a picket on Highway 30.

Milo Reno, president of the National Farmers' Holiday Association which sponsored the strike, said: "These acts of violence are regrettable."

GETS 10 DAYS IN JAIL FOR HUNTING ON WARREN LAND
James Scully, 21, of Hurley, was committed to the Ulster county jail Monday to serve ten days in default of a fine of $10, imposed by Justice Minard Elmendorf on a charge of trespass. Scully was arrested Monday by Game Protector Burton M. Castle on complaint of William A. Warren, who charged Scully with hunting on his property on Saturday.

Mr. Warren says that he has had a good deal of trouble from persons trespassing upon his farm at Hurley, although the property has been posted according to law. He adds that warnings and protests have not accomplished anything, forcing him to take legal action.

QUEER ELECTION TO BE HELD IN GERMANY NOVEMBER 12
Berlin, Nov. 7. (AP)—The heaviest oratorical guns of the Nazi party were rushed up today as the national election campaign entered its final phase.

Not that they appeared to be greatly needed, for Germany is to hold one of the queerest elections on record anywhere, November 12. A ballot will be placed before the citizen which contains only one lot of names—a slate picked by Adolf Hitler.

But the Nazi regime is eager to have the votes roll in, a sweeping verdict of popular acclaim in the plebiscite on the Hitler government's bold new foreign policy.

MM. SCHUMANN-HEINK IS SICK IN CALIFORNIA
San Diego, Nov. 7. (AP)—Mme. Ernestine Schumann-Heink, world famous contralto and "mother" of ex-servicemen, was in the Mercy Hospital today suffering from an intestinal infection which may be an attack of appendicitis.

Dr. Charles M. Fox, her son-in-law and physician, said the 72-year old singer suffered only minor pains and that her condition was not considered serious. She was not running a fever and there was no present indication of appendicitis "although the infection might be the result of an inflamed appendix," Dr. Fox said.

Progress Reported In Strike Disputes

Only Areas Not Amenable to Conciliation
Are in Iowa and Pennsylvania —Tool and Die-makers at Peace in Detroit—Indiana Miners Return to Work.

(By The Associated Press).
Further progress toward settlement of industrial disputes was reported today.

But in the troubled farm strike area there was no apparent lessening of the tension. A request for state troops from Mayor W. D. Hayes of Sioux City, at whose markets the anti-selling movements has been directed, was held by Governor Clyde Herring, of Iowa, pending developments.

The past twenty-four hours saw a settlement of the tool and die-makers' strike in some of Detroit's automobile factories and in more than a score of smaller plants in that city.

Wage agreements for seven coal mines in Vanderburgh and Warrick counties in Indiana sent back to work several hundred workmen who had been idle for a month.

In the soft coal fields of Pennsylvania the miners were back at work, but in the western section hard coal diggers were on strike, in response to a call from the United Anthracite Miners of Pennsylvania, an insurgent group which severed its connections with the United Mine Workers of America.

The appeal for troops in Iowa followed the burning of a railroad bridge yesterday near Sioux City. Another bridge between Meriden and Cleghorn, Iowa, was set afire last night, presumably, the authorities said, by farm pickets.

Sioux City business men, meanwhile made another request for troops. They described the situation as "serious."

Freedom Is Obtained For Bessie Wakefield

Prisoner For Whom a Generation of Connecticut Women Fought Final ly Wins Pardon—Will Remove to Reading, Pa.

Hartford, Conn., Nov. 7. (AP)—The freedom of Bessie Wakefield, a cause celebre for a generation of Connecticut women, was won today after the board of pardons granted her a full pardon for the slaying of her husband.

Mrs. Wakefield, 44, a central figure in a noted murder case, was pardoned yesterday after her 17th appearance before the state board, and 19 years in prison.

The members of the Bessie Wakefield Society, headed by Mrs. Ernest Thompson-Seton, Greenwich writer and explorer, and Miss Caroline Runtz-Rees, principal of a Greenwich girls' school, told the board a home awaited Mrs. Wakefield in Reading, Pa.

Mrs. Thompson-Seton said the pardoned woman, "a high type of Christian woman" through her education in prison, would join an aged Reading couple upon her release from the state prison for women at Ninan.

Milton Youth Killed As Gun Is Discharged

Patrick Salamo, 18, who resides with his parents on a farm near Milton, was instantly killed at 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon when a gun which he was examining accidentally discharged and tore off the side of his head. He died as his younger brother, 12, stood terror stricken less than four feet away.

Coroner Suiter, Marlborough, arrived less than half an hour after the accident and gave an informal verdict of accidental death.

Young Salamo was seated outside the house examining the gun in preparation for a deer hunting expedition. His little brother was nearby playing with a squirrel and feeding it nuts when he heard the gun go off. Turning he saw his brother prostrate on the ground.

The dead youth is survived by his parents, Frank and Martha Salamo, one sister and one brother. Funeral services were conducted this morning.

New York Elections Guarded by 25,000; Beat Three Watchers

25 Per Cent Vote Cast Three Hours
After Polls Opening—18,000 Police and Men Doing Extra Detail to Assist Large Army of Party
Watchers.

New York, Nov. 7. (AP)—The first instance of violence in the bitter municipal elections, in which Tammany Hall's hold on the city's government is at stake, came a few hours after the polls opened today when three Fusion party watchers at a lower side polling place were beaten by a gang of twenty thugs.

Long before the polls opened at 6 a. m., long lines of men had gathered at polling places in the Bowery. Three hours after the polls were thrown open, about 25 per cent of the registered vote had been cast despite almost constant challenging by an estimated army of 25,000 party watchers doing guard duty throughout the city.

A force of 18,000 police officers and men were mobilized to stop any disorders growing out of the heated campaign waged by the three principal candidates—Fiorello H. La Guardia, Fusion; Joseph V. McKee, "Recovery"; and Mayor John P. O'Brien, Tammany.

The first case of violence occurred when the three Fusion party watchers stepped out of a schoolhouse polling place for a breath of air. Their attackers came from inside the school house, they said, and first warned them to "stay outside or go to the hospital." The thugs escaped before a police detail arrived.

East Side polling places were in a bedlam of confusion early in the morning, as challengers stopped voter after voter and soon piled up the queues of people waiting to cast their ballots.

In an auditorium in lower Manhattan, police were hard pressed to keep order. The hall roared with heated dispute as voters resented the persistence of watchers.

VIRGINIA DETERMINED TO TRY NEGRO SUSPECT

Leesburg, Va., Nov. 7. (AP)—The Commonwealth of Virginia is determined to try George Crawford, negro charged with slaying two white women, regardless of the decision handed down today in circuit court, on a defense motion to quash the indictment.

Crawford is charged with killing Mrs. Agnes Boeing Hiley, well known society woman of Middleburg, Virginia, and her maid, Mrs. Nina Buckner, on January 13, 1932.

Judge James L. McLemore's awaited decision was on a defense charge that Judge J. R. H. Alexander, of the Loudoun county circuit court, discriminated against negroes by not placing them in a list from which was drawn the grand jury that indicted Crawford.

John Gallaher, the commonwealth's attorney, maintained there were no negroes in Loudoun county qualified to serve as grand jurors, and told newspapermen that if the court granted the motion, he would ask re-indictment of Crawford by the present or a special grand jury.

TWO MILK OPERATORS ADMIT LOW-PRICE BUYING

Albany, N. Y., Nov. 7. (AP)—The New York State Milk Control Board today had before it the replies of two New York city dealers to charges that they had underpaid Canadian and Vermont dairymen nearly $12,000 for milk and cream on the basis of minimum prices established by the board.

The board reserved its decision on the cases after a hearing yesterday. The concerns involved were the Waddington Milk and Cream Company and the Arnstein and Beckman Company.

The Waddington Company, according to the board, admitted buying cream from Canadian dairymen through their Canadian subsidiary, The Oakdale Farms Company, for less than the minimum price. The other company, which operates plants both in New York and Vermont, also said it bought milk from Vermont producers below the board's established price.

POLITICAL OBSERVERS SAY IT'S DEMOCRATIC WEATHER

Albany, N. Y., Nov. 7. (AP)—Cold rain and in some places a light snow, termed "Democratic weather" by political observers, greeted New York state's voters as they wended their way to the polls in the early hours today.

While there was some promise that the rain and snow might cease by noon, cloudy weather was forecast for the rest of the day with storms likely again in the late afternoon or tonight.

Snow started to fall in Albany soon after 3 o'clock and was continuing lightly two hours later, while in western New York driving rain and cloudy weather was general.

Repeal And Mayoralty Contests Gain Notice In Today's Elections

Voting Today Expected to End Prohibition Amendment of 13 Years
Standing—New York City Mayoral
Contest Draws Attention.

(By The Associated Press).
Voters in half a dozen widely scattered states today are inscribing the answer to whether thirteen years of national prohibition shall end next month.

Of almost equal importance to a large portion of the electorate in New York city's three-way mayoral contest in which Tammany's long reign is at stake.

Elsewhere on the off-year November election horizon—in scattered city and state elections—political observers hoped to gauge sentiment with an eye to congressional campaigns next year.

Confidence that the balloting in Pennsylvania, Ohio, North and South Carolina, Kentucky and Utah would climax the administration's campaign to restore liquor was expressed by Postmaster General Farley, who also brought the national administration a bit closer to the New York race with a last minute open appeal for election of Joseph V. McKee.

Wet organization leaders forecast anti-prohibition majorities in at least three of the six states voting—all that is necessary to assure elimination of the 18th amendment from the constitution—while dry organization captains said there were good chances for halting the hitherto unbroken wet parade.

Although voters express themselves today, actual repeal could not materialize until the first week in December. The ballots elect delegates to state conventions which, December 5 or 6, will ratify or reject a new constitutional amendment repealing the Eighteenth.

Repealists looked chiefly to Pennsylvania, Kentucky and South Carolina to join the 33 states which already have approved repeal by 11,329,190 to 3,735,657 popular vote. They also conceded little doubt about North Carolina and Ohio but were not so sure of Utah.

Dry forces claimed a big vote would be polled in Pennsylvania, but the repealers expected a two to one majority.

South Carolina touched off its last campaign day with a controversy between wets and dries over whether women must have poll tax receipts.

Prohibition leaders in the homeland of the dry cause—Ohio—held there was a good chance of a dry victory if the state's citizenry turned out in full strength. The Ohio repeal council predicted a three to one decision for the wets.

North Carolina's voting held a double interest in that two tickets were offered. On one the voter says whether he favors calling a convention to act on repeal and on the other he chooses between wet and dry delegates to the convention. If a majority is against convention none can be held.

Both wets and dries conceded Utah's two largest cities—Salt Lake City and Ogden—would go for repeal, but prohibition Neutentists looked to the rural areas for victory.

In Kentucky, both the Democratic and Republican state parties were pledged to repeal leading to forecasts that the commonwealth would be wet by a good majority.

Interest in the New York city mayoralty election was heightened because of the involvement of future political control. Although the White House had declared a "hands-off" policy in the contest, the interest in it taken by Postmaster General Farley, Democratic national and state chairman, assumed significance.

The three-cornered race came to a close with forecasts of victory of all contestants, Joseph V. McKee, "Recovery Party" nominee; Fiorello H. La Guardia, Fusion candidate, and the incumbent Tammanyite, Joseph P. O'Brien.

First Halt in RFC Gold Overnight Price

Washington, Nov. 7. (AP)—A price of $32.84 an ounce was announced today for RFC purchases of newly mined domestic gold, being no change from yesterday's quotation but representing an increase of $1 over the London market.

This was the first time since the purchases began that the price was not raised overnight.

The London price declined today by one shilling 10 pence, to $31.84 on the basis of the sterling opening there at $3.90.

Later the dollar weakened to $1.39 3/4.

Washington, Nov. 7. (AP)—President Roosevelt and Maxim Litvinoff

clasp hands today across a years-old gap of diplomatic indifference.

An end to the "present abnormal relations" between Russia and the United States was the announced objective of Mr. Roosevelt in welcoming the Soviet republic's spokesman.

Formal recognition is the known desire of Litvinoff, Russian commissar of foreign affairs, and at least a preliminary understanding looking toward recognition is the expectation of Washington's official circles.

The Blue Room of the White House was selected for this first meeting in 16 years between an American President and a representative of Russia's 160,000,000 people. There, late this afternoon, Litvinoff will be presented to Mr. Roosevelt by Secretary Hull after the trip from New York under special guard.

This first handshake may prove only a formality, but in administration circles it holds possibilities of a swift understanding between the President and Litvinoff.

Mr. Roosevelt will do his own negotiating in the "frank, friendly conversations" to which he invited Litvinoff. This fact, coupled with the Russian's international reputation for blunt, cards-on-the-table diplomacy, spells in some quarters a speedy solution of problems separating the two nations.

Tomorrow the two statesmen will meet in the White House dining room for luncheon. But even if table talk only is possible then, Mr. Roosevelt and Litvinoff will meet in earnest Thursday morning to explore Russo-American relations.

At the President's side when he talks with the Soviet officials will sit chosen experts of the government. They include Secretary Hull, Undersecretary Phillips, Assistant Secretary R. Walton Moore, William Bullitt, special assistant to the secretary of state, and Henry Morgenthau, Jr., governor of the Farm Credit Administration.

This personnel stresses in the capital questions of debts, claims, credits, and commercial intercourse. But Litvinoff's expert advisors in the financial and commercial fields, points more vigorously toward a general understanding regarding recognition. Other issues subordinated for the present.

Every honor accorded a foreign minister of a recognized nation is prepared for Litvinoff.

Traveling in Special Train.
Jersey City, N. J., Nov. 7. (AP)—Maxim Litvinoff, Soviet commissar for foreign affairs, left here at 11:32 a. m. today, in a five-car special train for Washington for his conversations with President Roosevelt.

He was landed at Pier 5 at 11:18 from the cutter Manhattan, which brought him and his party from the liner Berengaria at Quarantine.

Only a few persons were permitted on the pier, which was guarded by 150 uniformed policemen, 90 detectives and some secret service men. Among those at the pier to greet the Soviet diplomat were twelve representatives of the Amtorg Trading Corporation, commercial representative of the Soviet in the United States.

LITVINOFF IN U. S., HOPES FOR ACTUAL DISARMAMENT
New York, Nov. (AP)—Maxim Litvinoff, Soviet commissar for foreign affairs, arrived today for his momentous conversations with President Roosevelt expressing the hope that "the establishment of normal relations between the Soviet government and the United States would now bring actual disarmament."

"We shall negotiate no treaties while we are here," the Russian foreign minister told interviewers who met him down the bay on the liner Berengaria.

From the liner he was taken in a special tug to Jersey City to catch a special train for Washington.

JOB SAYS KILLING ENDS 'YEARS OF ABUSE'

Buffalo, N. Y., Nov. 7. (AP)—Buffalo police today said Aloysius Joba, 19, one of five held since William Sieczkarek's battered body was found Sunday, had confessed that he beat Sieczkarek to death during a fight and then fired the bed to hide the crime. He said he did not mean to kill Sieczkarek.

Investigate Masseur Ransom.

(AP)—A Rengo (Japanese) News Agency from Harbin, Manchuria, today said Manchukuo authorities had ordered an investigation of alleged reports concerning "the massacre of 3,000 Chinese citizens" early in the year in a Siberian village. The agency said the village was given a "protection" by the Manchukuo government.

Conservation Camp Finally Under Wood

Stokes, Nov. 6.—Camp No. 2, C. C. C., is now officially "under wood," the several barracks and other units of frame construction being practically all completed and occupied. Squads of men on Saturday were busy taking down the last of the hospital ward tents which for the past seven months have served as quarters, mess halls and so forth. These large tents, each of which taxed the strength of four men to carry on poles, were stowed away pending their possible erection again next spring. All of the pine floorings of the tents have been taken up and a large part of this lumber has been nailed to the posts under the buildings in order to make for greater protection against the wintry winds of the upper Esopus valley. Such of the lumber as is not needed for this purpose will be piled up and made use of in some other way. The odds and ends, both of old and new lumber, are used for kindling wood at the incinerating plant near the east bank of the creek.

The interior of the new 120-foot barracks is in appearance not greatly unlike that of the old wooden barracks such as were in use at Fort Mifflin and other army posts, previous to and during the World War. There are two rows of iron cots extending the length of the building, with sufficient space between to insure comfortable moving around. Near the center of the barracks and on either side of the aisle are two box stoves capable of holding a big armful of two-foot firewood. The windows are placed high up under the eaves of the building and are opened and shut by sliding them. Each bed has a mattress, pillow, two sheets, four army blankets and one heavy quilt. The atmosphere of the quarters is one of cleanliness and comfort, and with the whole adequately lighted by electricity the scene within presents a snug and inviting appearance. The fabric-board walls and ceiling also contribute much to the homelike effect. The only paint used is on the doors and window sash and frames, which have been decorated in green by painters detailed from the members of the corps.

Other innovations. One of the five barracks will be used as a combined assembly hall and quarters for the state foresters and army and non-commissioned officers of the hall taking up the south half of the building. The section occupied by the foresters and headquarters men is equipped with 17 beds. The new kitchen, located in the north end of a building erected near the site of the old mess hall. At the north end of this long structure are the army ranges—three of them placed end to end and each having eight holes for pots and pans. Three hot water tanks will be connected to the ranges and coal will be used for fuel. This system obviously is a vast improvement over the old kitchen, which has been in use since the construction of the camp. The new kitchen and mess hall probably will be ready for use within a few days, after which the semi-enclosed building now occupied by the cook and kitchen police for cooking purposes will be converted into a small barracks for the men who comprise the chow brigade at the big camp. An extra room, opening from the rear of the kitchen proper, has been set aside for the potato and onion bins as well as for the boys detailed to prepare these staple vegetables daily for the "slum." The squads peelers no longer will be exposed to drafts and splashing rain water as they bend to their appointed tasks.

The administration building, located at the north of Cold Brook end of the camp grounds, is one of the three buildings whose length is not built parallel to the state road, the other two being the hospital unit and the supply house. The east end of this long structure is devoted to the headquarters offices, while the remainder of the building is given over to the officers' mess hall, individual sleeping quarters, bath and shower rooms. The shower room is equipped with a small coal burner and hot water tank similar to those in the hospital and one or two other units. These are in charge of Ben Franklin, C. C. C. engineer of the camp. The cement floor in the bath house on the first level is ready for use and the showers and wash basins will be in operation within a few days. The latrine, at the southwest corner of the grounds, is equipped with modern plumbing. About 650 feet of pipe is being laid at a depth of four feet for conveying water from the McKelvey spring, where a frame shelter has been erected and an electric pump and 500-gallon pressure tank will shortly be installed. The storehouse, in charge of Corporal Bolt and Clerk Argo, contains a vast assortment of goods, included among which are the following articles: Overcoats, fatigue uniforms, rubber boots, high and low shoes, blankets, towels, mattresses, pillows, cases, provisions, saws, axes, mattocks, grindstones, athletic goods—and what not.

Personal and Recreational. Major George W. Easterday, who had been commanding officer at Camp No. 2 since its inception, left Boiceville Thursday for Camp Dix, N. J., which will be his headquarters while serving as commander of the 2nd New Jersey District, C. C. C. Camp Dix is now a regular army post and concentration camp for the conservation corps. On Halloween night the major was tendered a farewell banquet and smoker in the mess hall. The boys of the kitchen force got together a bang-up feed for the crowd, and Joe Argo officiated as toastmaster and also made a speech in behalf of the men in which he extolled the fine work done by that officer during his sojourn at Camp No. 2. Capt. John G. Reel, of the reserve corps and formerly of Kingston, also has gone to Camp Dix. The captain had been stationed at Boiceville for the past several weeks. The new commanding officer is First Lieutenant

Washington Daybook

By HERBERT PLUMMER
WASHINGTON—When President Roosevelt, in his "third report" to the country, attended an invitation to home owners in distress to wire or write Washington of their plight, the response was tremendous.

Almost immediately messages began to pile up at the Federal Home Loan Bank board. Only a few days had passed when 500,000 home owners, faced with the threat of foreclosure, had communicated with the board.

These half-million applicants have asked for financial aid to the total of a billion and a half dollars. In the same address, the President issued another invitation. "The balance of the public works money," he said, "nearly all of it intended for state or local projects, waits only on the presentation of proper projects by the states and localities themselves. Washington has the money and is waiting for the proper projects to which to allocate it. This phase of the public works program evidently was singled out by the President for the reason that funds are going out slowly."

Explaining The Delay
THOSE who have watched the situation from the outside as well as experts in the PWA, believe there are several reasons for the delay. They are able to put their fingers on a few. There may be others. For one thing, a lot of states and localities not yet have been brought around to believing that higher taxes through the levying of new bond issues is the way to recovery. Also, there are states which have legal as well as financial restrictions in accepting PWA offers. Secretary Ickes has said he wants all applications in by January 1. In view of this, therefore, some of the states have abandoned efforts to remove legislative barriers.

The survey and planning costs of proposed projects form another stumbling block to some. These must be finished before actual construction can begin. And while the government has money for this purpose as yet there has been found no way to apply it locally.

'Minority Control'
OPPOSITION has been expressed in some instances because the federal government, which contributes only 25 per cent of some expenditures, insists on rigid control of that particular project. Labor costs play their part, too. Many of the states have insisted that no work can be done as long as Washington insists all skilled labor must be paid at the rate of $1.10 per hour.

It has been complained also that Washington refuses to put some money in the communities by releasing funds for the purchase of materials, even though materials so purchased would go into construction when the project got under way. These are a few of the reasons advanced for the delay which is throwing the recovery machinery out of gear. It may be necessary to Otto Wienecke, Air Corps, who was assigned here from Mitchell Field during the first enlistment period of the 215th company. The lieutenant, who had been second in command following the transfer to Cornell University of Capt. W. A. Holmes, is a graduate of the Ballou and Air Corps Primary Flying School 1925, and the A. C. Advanced F. S. 1926. He is a rated airplane pilot, airplane observer, balloon and airship pilot and balloon observer. Lieutenant Wienecke served in the Philippine Islands, 1930-32. His present station is Mitchell Field, L. I. The lieutenant is popular with the woodsman, army men and foresters at the big camp and also has many friends in the towns of Olive and Shandaken.

Sunday evening a number of the men by invitation attended the services at the Phenicia Baptist Church. J. C. Fraser of the Kingston High School and August Franke, tenor, also of Kingston, were scheduled to take part in this church service. Trucks were also to convey men to the Mt. Tremper Reformed Church where they were to attend the regular preaching service.

A basketball squad is now practicing for matched games under the direction of First Lieutenant Sydney Freilich, Medical Corps, who has been placed in charge of recreations and athletics at the camp. The hall at Chichester for the time being will be used by the squad and team for home games. An outdoor court has been fitted up for practice work. Several players of recognized ability have signed up for basketball, a number of them being Ulster county boys. Lieutenant Freilich is desirous of arranging games with local teams as soon as possible and asks that managers communicate with him with a view to getting dates with the Boiceville five. The lieutenant, who came here from the 27th Evacuation Hospital, is a Georgetown University man and has had considerable experience in athletic sports. He is a skilled boxer and as a part of his new duties has already inaugurated night boxing practice at Camp No. 2. More news of the padded mits and squared circle will follow in subsequent articles, as the woodmen gladiators warm up to their stuff and begin to stage regular bouts.

General C. C. C. News

More than $400,000 is being allotted the conservation corps companies for the purchase of magazines and newspapers, books and educational equipment, and for radios and athletic equipment, according to a recent issue of "Happy Days," which states that each company will receive approximately $300 for this purpose. Moreover, every camp is going to have a separate building that is adequate for proper recreational activities during the coming month. The latter announcement follows an inspection of camps in New York state by Director Robert Fechner, in the course of which the official found camps where separate recreational units had not been provided. From Company 811, at Valhalla, New Mexico, comes the novel and interesting story of a company commander from the ranks of the C. C. C. It appears that George H. Bennett, a second lieutenant in the Infantry Reserve, having no idea of being called into active duty enlisted in Company 1825 and served for three months as a supply clerk. Then he was called into service and eventually became Company 811's commanding officer. Being a former peavy himself, the lieutenant has made a great hit with the boys who are mighty proud of their new "boss" as having risen from the ranks. Company 234, a contingent of World War veterans stationed at a camp near Boston, boasts of a bona fide Chinese cook, the culinary jewel being Lun Lee, one time cook of the Eighth Infantry, who in the "pippie" days following the war ran a swell restaurant in Chicago. Lee's K. O. by Kid De-pression proved a break for the vets, who claim that what the boy can't do with food is nobody's business. One of the boys in fact has gained 42 pounds since last spring.

Company 203, North Hudson, has established what is believed to be a forestry record for planting trees in New York state. With an average of 23 boys working six days, 124,000 trees were set out. One of the boys of Company 256, Blue Mountain, tells this one of his new girl friend. Her dad is a radio announcer, so it sort of "runs" in the family. At a recent family dinner she was called upon to say grace. With bowed head and in clear tones, she said: "This food comes to you through the conservation of NRA." The boys of Company 711, Ely, Minn., have ring-side seats while a 300-pound grizzly bear mauls a garbage can about in a daily encounter. Having an audience doesn't disturb old Bruin in the least. The camp at Plumas Forest, Cal., has one less "Irish Buggy," as a result of a peavy's bright idea. Blasting was scattering decomposed granite far and wide so the lad put his wheelbarrow over a charge. Result: The "barrow" had to be gathered up with a broom. The idea was too darned good. Following a week's baptism of fire, Company 702, Bena, Minn., has been cited for instant attack and honored with the name of "The Old Guard." For nearly eight days the outfit fought forest fires almost continuously—tramping, packing supplies, lugging water from blasted holes and remote pumps, patrolling, shoveling, chopping and whatnot, these blistered and seared woodmen stayed right through to the end and finally licked that big blaze in the piney woods at a standstill. A game and gritty bunch, these boys!

Crossing Depression Submitted to Greene

A letter has been received by Palmer Canfield, executive chairman of the Workers Cooperative Association, from Alfred H. Schoellkopf, chairman of the State Temporary Emergency Relief Administration, that he had recommended the elimination of the West Shore Grade Crossing at Broadway as a desirable work relief project to be carried out at this time, and that he had submitted it to Col. Frederick Greene, state superintendent of public work with his approval. The petition filed on September 30 with the Public Service Commission for its elimination by the Workers Cooperative Association was endorsed by the Common Council and the Taxpayers Association. The petition asks for the depression of the railroad tracks leaving Broadway at the present grade, and that it be done at this time with the help of the Federal Government which is asked to contribute 20 per cent of the cost and to loan the state and the railroad the remaining 80 per cent. It is estimated that the labor alone would amount to over $1,000,000, which should provide employment for all the jobless in the city for the next year or two, and much of which money would come back to the merchants. Mr. Canfield has also received letters from Col. Greene and from the Public Service Commission that they are in favor of the elimination of the crossing at this time.

Japanese Seeking Soviet Evacuation

Improved Southern Toward U. S. As Our Fleet Concentration Is to be Shifted—Now Forwarding Russia For Better Feeling Between the Nations.

Tokyo, Nov. 7 (AP)—With American ships ordered to steam out of Pacific waters next spring, Japan sought today to prevail upon Russia to march her soldiers out of far-eastern Siberia.

Improved Japanese sentiment toward the United States is evident as a result of plans to end concentration of the American fleet on the Pacific, a foreign office spokesman said.

Now, he went on, Japan feels Soviet Russia should make a "suitable gesture" to improve Russo-Japanese relations. In fact, it was added, the Russian ambassador has been told as much.

Foreign Minister Hiroto and Ambassador Yano of the Soviet spent three hours going over Japan's suggestion that Russia decrease her military concentrations in far eastern Siberia, Japanese news sources reported.

Hiroto feels—and said so—that Russo-Japanese tension largely is due to the presence of Soviet soldiers in the far east—particularly along the frontiers of the Japanese-occupied state of Manchukuo.

The Russian Ambassador was described as having expressed willingness to negotiate. But he had complaints to make, too. One was the matter of alleged oppression of Soviet officials of the Chinese eastern railroad in Manchukuo.

War Debt Talks End But British Will Pay

December 15 installment will be met with $7,500,000 payment. At present exchange British Treasury would make advantage. Talks end without prejudice.

Washington, Nov. 7 (AP)—President Roosevelt today announced the end of British war debt negotiations without an agreement but with the payment of $7,500,000 by Great Britain on its December 15th installment.

This token payment will be paid in American currency in lieu of the $117,000,000 due from the British in mid-December under the existing agreement.

The president announced that in view of the part payment, he would not regard the British government as in default.

This was the attitude taken last June, at which time the British paid about ten per cent of the amount due, and that in silver at the rate of 50 cents an ounce to the amount of $11,000,000.

In his statement today, Mr. Roosevelt said the debt negotiations were concluded without prejudice "until certain factors in the world situation—commercial and monetary—become more clarified."

The Great Pyramid

The Great Pyramid was erected in the reign of Khufu or Cheops, probably about 2,700 B. C. Its base covers 13 acres. It is 451 feet high (its original height having been 481 feet). The length of each side is 746 feet. It has been estimated to contain about 2,300,000 stone blocks of an average volume 40 cubic feet, and to weigh over 6,000,000 tons. According to Herodotus, it must have taken 100,000 men 20 years to construct. This pyramid was built with a sepulchral chamber to contain the body of Cheops. It is probable that this body, with the royal jewels, was stolen centuries ago. The stone for the pyramid was taken from the Mokattam and Tura hills on the opposite side of the Nile, and traces of the road by which it was conveyed are still visible. The methods of construction and reasons for its location can only be conjectured. According to some writers, its purpose was to give employment to the numerous captives as much as to immortalize the ruler.

Joker Postage Stamp

Nine, one of the islands of the South Seas and a dependency of New Zealand, for many years used the stamps of that commonwealth overprinted with the name "Nine" and a value expressed in native words using English letters. In 1903, when a new supply of stamps arrived, one in particular seemed to cause an unusual amount of merriment on the part of the natives. An inquiry revealed that the stamp was overprinted "Tahae Sileti" instead of "Tahae Sileti" which does not seem provocative of much mirth until it was learned that the former means "Thief Shilling" and not "One Shilling" as intended by the printers.

"Anglo-Saxon"

The term "Anglo-Saxon" is a collective name given by historians to various Teutonic or German tribes which settled in England, chiefly in the fifth century, and ultimately merged with each other and the races which preceded them to the island. Among them were Angles, from the district of Angeln in Schleswig-Holstein; Saxons, and Jutes, from Jutland or Denmark. Their languages were closely related Teutonic dialects which are not now spoken, but which have a sturdy descendant in the modern English language, Anglo-Saxon, or Old English, its basis. Norman-French, Latin, Greek and other languages have contributed to it.

To Erect Skyscraper at Birthplace of Columbus

Genoa, Italy.—The first modern skyscraper of Genoa is to be begun this fall. American visitors to the birthplace of Columbus have long felt that skyscrapers already exist there, the quarters of the poor being generally some eight flights high.

An American historian, on seeing these buildings in which the fishing and sailor folk of the former queen of the Mediterranean have lived for centuries, opined that "the chances are worth betting on that Columbus was the world's first skyscraper-born baby."

The skyscraper to be built this fall will be twenty stories high.

How to Reduce Heating Costs by JOHN BARCLAY, Heating Expert

Banking the fire at night always seems to present a problem to the average home owner. As a matter of fact, this is a simple operation when properly done.

The main complaint with most people is that when the fire is banked at night there is not sufficient heat available in the morning. This can be very easily overcome. When you are getting ready to retire for the night, gently shake your fire until you can see the first red glow in the ashpit. (It is not necessary to open the ashpit door in order to see this. When the glow appears it can be seen through the crevices around the slide in ashpit door.)

When you see this first red glow, stop shaking the furnace. Then with your hoe, or shovel, pull the live coals forward toward the feed door. You will then have a bed of fire sloping down from the feed door to the back of your furnace. Into this hollow, feed fresh coal . . . but do not cover up the live coals immediately in front of the feed door. This "hot spot" should be allowed to remain so that it will act as a pilot light for the gases arising from the fresh coal.

One thing that is important in this connection is this: Never bank your fire with anything but fresh coal. The old time practice of banking a fire with cinders and ashes will not only cause unsatisfactory heat, but it will cause you no end of trouble.

My previous articles on the proper position of the dampers apply during the banking period. The check damper should be open, the ashpit damper closed. The turn damper, of course, should remain in the same position as usual.

If your dampers are open too wide, the fuel will burn too fast during the early part of the banking period, and there will not be sufficient fuel left in the furnace in the morning to heat the house. If the dampers are not open far enough, the fuel will not receive sufficient air to maintain the proper temperature. If you burn coal that is too large, even if your dampers are closed, more air than is necessary will pass through your fuel bed and will burn up the coal with the result that you will be wasting heat up the chimney and have insufficient heat in your house.

If you follow these instructions, use the right size of coal, put on a sufficient charge of coal, and keep your dampers set in the proper positions, you will have plenty of heat in the morning.

ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS
Mrs. R. V. M. Troy, N. Y.—Air circulation above the basement is very important, and in order to heat the different rooms the doors should be left open as much as possible. The cold air which is formed should be allowed to find its way back to the heater. This is done by placing cold air returns at those locations where there are extra large windows or a group of windows together. One location would be at the bay window in the front room.

The cold air from the second floor must be allowed to descend the stairs. In the hall on the first floor another cold air return can be located. These returns are connected to the heater the same as described for the present cold air inlet. Cold air returns for inside air do not need flat dampers, but a slide damper should be installed in the present cold air return, to shut it off completely.

(If you have any heating problems address John Barclay, Room 1814, 120 Broadway, New York City. He will be glad to reply in a personal letter.)

ZENA

Zena, Nov. 7.—Hallowe'en was celebrated in proper fashion at the Zena Country Club when members and their families, about 50 in all, gathered at the clubhouse on Wednesday evening for a party. The majority of the folks came in costume and with the very appropriate decorations and dim light, made a very pretty picture. As each person arrived he was greeted at the door by the traditional witch in the person of Miss Edith Baldinger, who surely kept folks guessing as to her identity for a long while. Games were played until the arrival of the ever popular Pete Boice with his accordion and then the dancing began. Near midnight refreshments were served in cafeteria style after which dancing was resumed. Those present had a very pleasant evening. The committee in charge were Miss Julia Klementis, chairman; Mesdames Holmzer, Thais and Lynch and the Misses Alice Holmzer and Edith Baldinger.

Mrs. William McTigue had the misfortune to fall on her kitchen floor last Tuesday and broke two bones in her left wrist. The McTigue family returned to their home in New Jersey on Friday.

By J. J. J.

TO AGENTS
All wandering heads and feet at last
Safe in the bosom of the shining coat
And day by day our footsteps onward roam
Toward that which is to be.

Those mingled with our greatest joys
Those mixed with our greatest pains
And after sunset's blushing flowers
Convey winter's sheet and rain.

Soft, the beguiling melody of June's sweet breath
And chill December's hostile wind,
Brave busy youth and joyous willow
And whistles in my ear.

When low the downy daisy
White with the daisy's
State not the daisy's cheek my dear
With unravelling tears.

But hold in thine my dearest hand
Content, that the heart is
When April folds his dusky wings
And whistles in my ear.

OUR DAILY PATTERNS.

A Pretty Evening Frock for Slender Figures.

7998. This is a pretty style for Juniors, and others who are slight and slender. As pictured it was developed in embroidered mousseline with plain mousseline for the sleeve ruffles, the cowl and belt. A sash may replace the belt. The waist is cut to blouse slightly. The skirt is fitted closely above the flounce that flares with pleasing fullness. This model is also suggested for lace, net or organdy, and will be lovely in satin.

Designed in 2 sizes: 11, 13, 15, 17 and 19, with corresponding bust measure 29, 31, 33, 35 and 37. Size 13 if made as in the large view, will require 3 1/2 yards of 75 inch material, together with 3/4 yard of contrasting material for cowl, sleeve ruffles and belt. ## Tips on CONTRACT

SLAM CONTRACTS
By TOM O'NEIL

Many slams are bid when the auction should have stopped short of such contracts, but the declarer succeeds in his commitments.

In many other hands the partners with the high cards fear the result of bidding weak suits or think there may be unfavorable distribution and as a result stop short of slams when there is a laydown for a big bonus. Such uncertainties are, of course, part of the test of the game.

Here is a hand from a tournament at the Deschappelles club, New York, at which the auction ended with three no trump at most tables:

NORTH		SOUTH
♠ 10 8	♥ 10 4	♠ 4 3	♥ 7 6 5
♦ 3	♣ 10 5	♦ 4 2	♣ 7 6 5
WEST		EAST
♠ 6 5 3	♥ 9 8 7 5	♠ 9 8 7 5	♥ 4 3 2
♦ 9 8 7 5	♣ 9 8 7 5	♦ 4 3 2	♣ 9 8 7 5

Mr. and Mrs. Don Zucan made six clubs, the bidding going as follows: North one club; South two diamonds, a force; North two no trump, a sign-off due to a minimum opening; South three clubs, showing a fit with the opener's suit; North three hearts, a shaded suit for further investigation of slam possibilities; The South four no trump, showing two aces and the king of a bid suit; North five clubs, signing off at the lowest ranking suit bid; South six clubs, the forcing hand deciding on the final contract.

A heart finesse is necessary to make the contract. It would make no difference whether East covered only five can be made at no trump. East should lay off on the finesse and must make his heart king.

Fits in three suits, with primary controls of the first leads and secondary control in the fourth suit warranted the slam bid.

A big top was obtained on another board by a successful grand slam that should not have been bid and could have been defeated.

NORTH		SOUTH
♠ 10 8	♥ 10 4	♠ 4 3	♥ 7 6 5
♦ 3	♣ 10 5	♦ 4 2	♣ 7 6 5
WEST		EAST
♠ 6 5 3	♥ 9 8 7 5	♠ 9 8 7 5	♥ 4 3 2
♦ 9 8 7 5	♣ 9 8 7 5	♦ 4 3 2	♣ 9 8 7 5

Helen R. Mascher, the dealer, bid a diamond and Lily Stevenson, North, faced with two hearts. The bidding continued: South two no trump, signing off; North three diamonds, showing a fit and hinting at slam; South six no trump, a great overbid, since there had been no inference as to control of clubs; North seven diamonds.

A club opening could have defeated the contract but West hesitated to lead from the knave and thought a trump opening would be safe. The spade finesse was right and the diamonds and hearts broke. A lucky result.

Fashions by Eleanor Gunn

The Wool Dress Wins by Large Majority

New York—What smart women are wearing at the polls will probably be counted and checked by those whose business it is to keep tabs on the public's sartorial rather than political choice. Women manage to look prosperous, and whether they go in for the neat, without benefit of fur types of costume, or whether they are literally buried under fur, they are worth looking at.

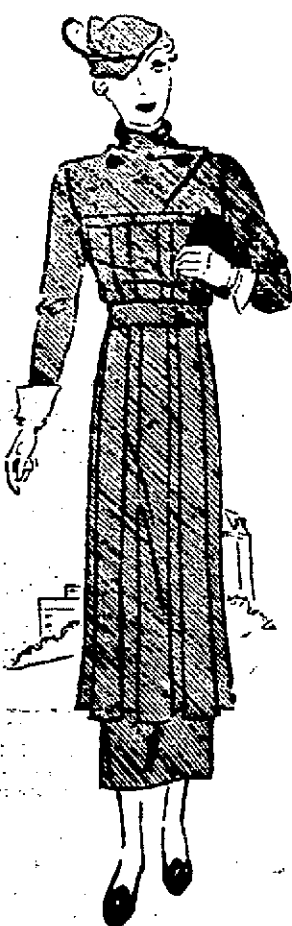

There has been such a tremendous change, especially around the neckline, that the whole fashion picture has new interest. The shawl collars of other years have more or less disappeared. In their place are tight little standing, or scarf, collars and any number of cape and capelet effects not to mention reverse, which, especially when fur, are voted very chic.

Women who have hearkened to the voice of the prophet are now fulfilling their prophecies by wearing neat wool, velveteen or velvet dresses and fur pieces. Capelets are the most interesting entries. Animal scarfs are a classic, therefore, like a string of pearls, always good. The season brings us not only the small animals harnessed together but bold, black wolves and foxes not always black and newest of all boas.

If you cannot see yourself in civet cat, as Schlaparelli advises, choose something else. And if the narrow, rather thin boss does not interest you, there are stoles and cravats of several kinds which, should you happen to be among the not so slender, would be better for you than fatter furs.

And don't overlook this splendid chance of wearing a fur hat; they are immensely flattering to most.

Acetate jersey in a raised rib stripe, brown and gold, is used for the slender tunic blouse sketched above. Round buttons and a high square neckline are details.

Below, left, a good design for a woman's blouse is developed in crepe back satin. Sleeves (futures) are gathered neatly into fitted bands and necks guarantee a smooth fit around the waistline. This blouse is suggested in dark as well as light satins.

The dress above is a two-piece with jacket blouse in neutral gray ribbed knit zephyr trimmed with a plain wool knit bow in Oxford and red to match the skirt. Below, a mixture tweed simulating a hand-knit tunic in black, white and bright green is featured in lightweight version for a one-piece frock with black leather belt.

But now the kind that costs least to use is the G-E Oil Furnace—the complete heating unit

If you don't know about the G-E Oil Furnace, you might buy an oil burner that would look just as crude a few years from now as the contraption pictured above.

To burn oil efficiently, you must have a burner and a boiler designed as one unit. Electric controls and domestic hot water heater should also be built in—as in the case with the G-E Oil Furnace. You never need go near this furnace. It keeps you supplied with hot water the year round. It maintains the temperature of your home at an even level with five super-sensitive G-E Thermal Control.

Although the furnace burns cheap fuel oil there isn't a trace of soot, smoke or odor. And all this luxury costs you less to enjoy than ordinary heating. G-E Oil Furnace owners report 20% to 50% savings on their fuel bills.

Dealer's factory trained engineers see that the installation is properly planned and made. The furnace supplies steam, vapor or hot-water heat—or is used in warm-air heated homes as part of the G-E Air Conditioning System. All we ask of you is that you see it or write for the facts, free.

HAVE JUNE WEATHER ALL WINTER

Winter Air Conditioning on a complete floor is now possible at a cost of not more than $300. Summer Air Conditioning, too, or year round air conditioning available for one room, a series of rooms, or the entire house, at far less cost than you imagine. Within a few years the home without air conditioning will be out of date. While you are getting the facts about the G-E Oil Furnace, let us tell you about G-E Air Conditioning as well.

Installation is made quickly—before your house can cool off. And we exchange your coal for oil.

RED CROSS CLOTHES THE NATION'S NEEDY

Flour, Bread, Clothing Reach into More Than Five Million Homes of Jobless

The greatest task ever undertaken by a relief agency in the history of private charity is drawing to a close with the final distribution of cotton clothing to more than five million families by the American Red Cross.

At the direction of the Congress, beginning eighteen months ago, the Red Cross undertook to convert the wheat and cotton surpluses of the Farm Board into food and clothing for the unemployed and needy. In the consequent operation, this relief agency entered upon a commercial enterprise greater than any single commercial firm has ever undertaken in the same period of time.

In the ensuing months the Red Cross converted $5,000,000 bushels of wheat into flour and bread and gave it to 5,803,600 families. The distribution was through 3,700 Red Cross chapters and hundreds of other charitable agencies. During the severe northwestern drought of 1931 the Red Cross also gave wheat in the form of food for livestock to 194,188 families.

The clothing—dresses, underwear, overalls, jumpers, sweaters and stockings for men, women and children, and even blankets and comforters—was distributed to 5,465,410 families. More than $4,000,000 ready-made garments and $2,000,000 yards of cotton cloth were given to the needy. This clothing came from $44,000 bales of cotton.

The wheat distribution was concluded in June, 1933, and final distribution of cotton clothing is occurring in the fall months.

In handling these tasks voted to it by Congress, the Red Cross will expend from its own treasury $735,000. At the same time the organization carried on its regular program of disaster relief; of service to the veterans of all our wars; of educational and welfare work through the Junior Red Cross; of health education and public health nursing and of life saving and first aid. Funds for this work come from the membership roll call the Red Cross chapters conduct from Armistice Day to Thanksgiving Day, when every one is invited to join the Red Cross and aid in this vital relief work.

Seven hundred thousand women volunteers under the Red Cross banner sewed for the needy last year and many thousands still are making cotton garments for their Red Cross chapters.

The Red Cross has 3,701 chapters and 10,000 branches of chapters. Thus it can be mobilized nationwide in a great relief task within 24 hours.

Names Are Author's Bane in Choosing Characters

The difficulty of inventing the name for a character in a story which does not belong to at least one person out of the 122 millions in the United States is almost insuperable, writes Arthur Train in the Saturday Evening Post.

There is hardly any combination of appellations so seemingly grotesque or preposterous that it has not a lawful owner who is almost certain to protest if his name has been taken in vain. It is by no means always enough to satisfy him either that (a) the story is purely imaginary or that (b) in any case, he is not the person referred to. You may demonstrate mathematically that nobody could possibly assume him with the character in question, since they differ diametrically in age, profession or business, as well as appearance; a smoldering resentment is apt to remain—due to his feeling that, even if he personally has not been brought into ridicule, the glory of the name itself—in which he has a sort of community interest along with all others similarly baptized—has somehow become tarnished.

Usually, the author must blame his own lack of experience for supposing certain names to be unusual. I remember thinking "Swackhammer" a highly individual appellation and used it as such, only to discover presently that the United States is composed largely of "Swackhammers." So it was with "Tut"—the woods proved to be full of 'em. Some named Ephraim!

All Spiders Have Poison Glands; Not All Poisons

All spiders possess a pair of poison glands. The primary purpose is to kill the prey on which they feed. In most the poison is comparatively innocuous to human beings, says the Indianapolis News, despite legends to the contrary that have arisen in connection with certain species like the tarantula. The bite of any spider strong enough to pierce the skin may give rise to local inflammation and pain, depending principally upon the amount of poison injected. The bite of the large species of the family Araneidae, sometimes called M-gales, and sometimes, but erroneously, known as tarantulas, may be painful, though not necessarily serious, provided the health of the patient is good. There is one possible exception to the innocuous nature of the poison, supplied by the species of the genus Lathrodectus, one of the Therididae, found in Chile, Madagascar, Australia, New Zealand and south Europe, where they are held in great fear by the people.

Spiders date from the Carboniferous period, Arthropoda and others from the coal beds of Europe and North America being closely allied to the existing genus, Liphistius. Remains of spiders from the Baltic amber beds of Oligocene age and from nearly coeval fluviatile or lacustrine deposits of North America belong to forms identical with or closely related to existing genera.

THE ARRAN ISLANDS

Arran Boys in Red Petticoats.

Prepared by National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.—VNU Service.

WHILE many business men of America and Europe talk of ushering in a new era to end economic ills, the inhabitants of the Arrans, three small islands off Ireland's west coast, go their way, apparently untouched by the world's troubles.

Simplicity, harmony, and a feeling of remoteness are all close to the root of the charm which the Arrans have for the occasional visitor. The islands seem not of this age, for the workaday world lies beyond the horizon of time as well as that of space.

The beauty of the setting and of the human picture are equally unconscious. There is a unity in the theatrical panorama of sea and sky, the medieval homeliness of speech and hearth and tool, the honest weave as well as the madder and indigo dye of textiles, the serene countenance of every fourth or fifth woman you meet on the undulating roads.

In the bare sanctuary of these islands the soul of ancient Ireland now has its ephemeral resting place. Language and habits, customs, traditions, flesh and blood, from the days of St. Patrick and before, forced westward through Connacht during seething ages, have concentrated at the Arrans.

Although the largest island of the group is less than nine miles long, the three together have, at a guess, as much stone wall as all New England. Inishman, the middle island, boasts 2,500 miles of walls. Inishkeer is not far behind, while Inishmore may have several times as much. No figures are authentic, but if a state ordinance officer were to tell you there are 10,000 miles of walls upon the three islands, you would admire his conservatism.

Huge Duns on the Hill.
Picking up blocks of limestone and disposing of them in the only way possible must always have been the chief occupation of the inhabitants. The prehistoric people indulged themselves by rearing on the hilltops massive, buttressed, Cyclopean forts, such as Dun Aengus and six others, ringed about with many concentric breastworks and chevaux-de-frise of stone.

These duns are among the most magnificent barbaric monuments that survive in Europe. Fortunately, the later Islanders were under no temptation to pull them down; rather, they were forced to emulate the example of the first builders, and to continue the unmortared masonry on a less heroic scale down the long slopes to the very crests of the beaches. Only thus might they hope to uncover a crannied pasturage and the patches of soil in which rye, potatoes, cabbage, and willow withers may grow.

From the rims of the duns, as also from the sea, the Arrans present the pattern of a crazy quilt. Breast-high walls, mostly a single layer of blocks in thickness, show no standard of arrangement or direction. The thousands of irregular inclosures that come under a glance have neither gates nor stiles. The method of turning a cow into pasture, and of releasing her at evening, is to take down a section of the boundary and then to build it up again behind you. A cross-country ramble, even for the nimble, becomes a process of demolition and stone-laying.

The present population of the Arrans is less than two thousand. Losses through emigration to the United States have been heavy and are still going on as fast as passage money can be sent from this side of the ocean. There are doubtless many more of the Islanders in the vicinity of Boston than remain at home.

Everybody, at any rate, has relatives in America, and the only important encounters are those of lonely mothers and fathers begging snapshots to be sent to the far-off children. Not a few of the expatriates return, with or without their fortunes; for the grip of the spray-washed rocks seems stronger, if possible, than that of the farthest glens in Eria. If only one could make a living at home!

While there are many family names among the people of the islands, the bulk of the population appears to be made up of four tribes—the Mullins, the Gills, the Flahertys, and the Connollys.

Four Main Tribes.

All of these names except Gill are spelled in more than one way, but are acknowledged to refer to the same stocks. Confusion that might result from the duplication of first names is commonly avoided by the addition of the father's given name. Thus Patrick Flaherty John or James Mullin William become sufficiently distinctive. These are here cited in English form, but Irish is, of course, the universal speech among the Islanders, and there are many of all ages who have little or no English.

The Arran people are, on the whole, a fine looking lot, variable in stature and complexion, but showing a strongly marked Norse component. Furthermore, their generally deliberate conversation is after the manner of the comic-story Norseman rather than of the proverbially quick Celt, although much of this may be due to the fact that they address a stranger in their second and less familiar language.

The clothing worn by the older inhabitants of Inishmore, and by practically the entire population of the less urban islands of Inishman and Inishkeer, is the time-honored garb of cloudy blue homespun, with ankle-length trousers for the men, and a white-sleeved coat over the blouse. A hat of heavy felt completes the native costume, but many of the younger men have taken to caps or tam-o'-shanters, as well as to the blue jersey of the fisherman.

The women wear long, red, homespun petticoats, indigo stockings, and red or parti-colored shawls. Taste and utility are combined in the woven woollen girdles, of bright hues, bound several times around the waists of men and boys or sewn as a decoration on the skirts of the women.

Except in the sophisticated parts of Inishmore, within a few miles of Killybeg, the dress of small boys includes a red petticoat in lieu of breeches. At Inishman one sees nothing else. Formerly the boys wore these until they were twenty or so, but now one sees none on youngsters of more than fifteen years.

The boys' skirt is, no doubt, a phase of the Gaelic kilt, surviving in shorter and more familiar form in the Scottish Highlands, but at the Arrans it seems to have become necessary to justify it by a spurious explanation. Probably as a result of innumerable inquiries by visitors, the following story is now passed out as a matter of course: The fairies of the commonplace devil have the power to lure small boys out of the everyday world, but their influence over little girls is much less. Therefore the boys are rigged out like girls and the evil ones are likely to be deceived, although there is no absolute assurance of safety.

What the Houses Are Like.
The dwellings on all three Arrans are of the usual Irish peasant type, built of cemented stone, whitewashed with lime and without, and roofed with thatch, flagstones, or slate shingles. Nine out of ten are thatched, and in this land of ocean gusts the straw is laced down with a network of cordage, the vertical strands of which are knotted to a line of pegs under the eaves. The pegs themselves are of limestone, forming units of the wall; for wood, even in small pieces, is at a premium.

The houses may have two, three, or even more rooms. At any rate, there will be the kitchen (the living room of the family) and a bedroom opening from it.

Above half of the kitchen is the inevitable turf loft, where sufficient peat is stored so that dry fuel is always at hand. The appurtenances of the kitchen include a pot-oven among the fireplace gear, and an open cupboard in which are ranged the treasured Canton plates, the trenchers, luster jugs, and other ware passed along from one generation to the next.

The cupboard, like the beds, is likely to be painted in a pattern of bright colors.

Cure Belief for Spider Bite Was Start of Dance

Late in the Middle Ages southern Europeans became obsessed by an unreasonable fear of spiders, says a writer in the National Geographic Magazine. They dreaded particularly the European tarantula, a medium-sized wolf spider, Lycosa tarantula, the bite of which was supposed to cause dizziness and nausea, followed by depressing melancholy and eventually death. Popular superstition held that only the "medicinal" choreographers could save tarantuli (bitten persons). If only the right tune could be found, music and the dance would do the trick. The choreographers possessed ability to select suitable music for any patient. Skipping and cavoring "with great vigor and variety of steps" made the patient perspire freely, and supposedly the deadly poison left the body with the perspiration. In the wild antics devised to shake off the dread tarantism originated a charming dance, the tarantella. Superstition and quackery gave way slowly before scientific experiments that proved the tarantulas of Europe really rather harmless. But meanwhile the white settlers of America had come in contact with much larger and more ferocious-looking spiders. We know today that there is little justification for fear of our true (American) tarantulas. One member of this group, however, the giant Sericopelma communis of Central America appears to be an exception in regard to its venomous nature.

Sterling Silver in Use Long Before Year 1350

One of the commonest trade terms in the United States is "sterling silver." What is the origin and meaning of this phrase which indicates a standard of quality? The word "sterling," says the National Geographic Magazine, means solid silver of a definite fineness. Pure silver is too soft for use. But add just a little copper, only 7 1/2 per cent, and you have substantial, enduring sterling. These proportions were used long before 1350 and have never been changed. "Sterling" on a piece is restricted by law in the United States and some other lands to silver which is 925-1,000 pure, and it is a guarantee that metal used in the piece is genuine. Sterling is an ancient word. It is a contraction of "Easterling." In the Twelfth century there flourished in Germany the Hanseatic league, comprising certain free towns. These towns issued money of their own, and in trading with English merchants gave their silver coins for British cattle, sheep and grain. The British soon learned that money from these Hansa towns was always the same, always dependable. Soon they came to insist on the coins of the Easterlings, or those from the east of Britain. Later "sterling" was made the standard both for English money and for the manufacture of solid silver—the standard of highest quality.

Ireland's Worst Storm

Probably the worst storm in the history of modern Ireland occurred on the night of January 6, 1899, and for two days after. Hundreds of houses were blown down by the gale in Limerick, Galway, Athlone and other places, while many others were destroyed by fires spread from those blown down. A great deal of damage was caused to shipping in the Irish sea. For a long time thereafter the people were accustomed to divide history into two periods, before and after the big wind. Secretes Backed Crime There is a good anecdote regarding Secretes which merits repetition. A certain gopius who profited himself on the ability to read the mind's construction to the face once before a group, including Secretes, enlarged on the vices reflected in the face of Secretes. Most of those in the group disagreed with the face reader, the philo-opher, however, remarking, "He is right—the vices are there; only reason has destroyed them."

PUNTS and PASSES

(By The Associated Press)

New Brunswick, N. J.—For consistency, Art Bruni, Rutgers full-back, is recommended to the attention of all and sundry. Called upon to make three yards or less for first down on 19 occasions this year, Bruni hasn't failed yet. In fact the only time he was thrown for a loss came when he tried something different, an end run.

Cambridge, Mass.—Edward Austin Waters, Harvard '37, rates a good seal for the Harvard-Yale game November 25. He's already left Tibet in order to get to Cambridge in time for the game.

Providence, R. I.—The best assurance that Princeton will finish its season unbeaten, as Tuss McLaughry, Brown coach, sees it, lies in the fact that the Tiger eleven is made up mostly of sophomores. "A sophomore team," he explains, "rarely gets overconfident. There are so many men of equal ability fighting for positions that any player who gets dissatisfied or conceited can be removed in favor of one of his rivals."

Evanston, Ill.—Professor Dick Hanley plans to conduct a series of lectures on "How to Avoid Fumbles" for his Northwestern team. Fumbles and poor handling of punts have handicapped the Wildcats all season.

Columbus, O.—Max Padlow, Ohio State guard, has decided football's not such a bad game after all. He quit the team between halves of the Indiana game Saturday, saying he was "disgusted," but he turned out for practice as usual yesterday.

Hanover, N. H.—Bill Morton, '21, who has been scouting Princeton all season, is teaching the Dartmouth Scrubs tiger plays for use against the Varsity in practice this week. That may help but the Indians have a much better chance against Princeton if Morton could return to quarterback post he used to fill. He was one of the finest passers in Dartmouth history.

Worcester, Mass.—Among major eastern schools, Charles (Bum) Harvey of Holy Cross is the highest scoring lineman. The 315-pound tackle has scored a touchdown, boot-kicked ten points after touchdowns for a total of 19 points. Fast for his size, he often is made an eligible man for a pass and is one of the best receivers on the squad.

Athens, Ga.—In addition to being the Southeast Conference's leading scorer, Cy Grant of Georgia is one of the country's best kickers. In Georgia's first four games his official kicking average was 52 yards.

SPORT SLANTS

By ALAN J. GOULD

(Associated Press Sports Editor.)

"What a sap I was to think I had to have a manager, go through a lot of phony notions for the sake of publicity and figure I could just sit back and wait for the profits to fall in my lap," a world-famous golf professional told me the other day. "Just because I won a few championships and fell for some soft, persuasive talk, I woke up and found myself—yes, right behind the old eight ball.

"Well, there's nothing like learning by your mistakes in these times. I didn't have to wait long to find out how wrong I was—just about 100 per cent wrong, like the fellows who try to pick the football winners, hey?

"So what? So I got out and hustled for myself. I made direct connections, hooked up with the right guy for an exhibition tour, and have been doing my own business transactions right down the line. I like it and take it from me, there's no substituting for hustling for yourself, with no 'cutting' the other guys in just for exercise."

Roll Their Own It's a sign of the time that our principal athletes, not alone the professional stars, but the amateur ones, too, have found they now have to be good business men if they hope to stick around the top and make the most of their calling.

Golf stars like Hagen, Sarazen, Farrell, Kirkwood, Mac Smith and Tommy Armour have established substantial business connections, apart from club affiliations or exhibition play.

The crack tennis professionals, Tilden, Richards, Kozeluh and others, manage their own engagements, and have found they do better for themselves than can managers who have a variety of interests.

Ellsworth Vines might have proved a better business man if he had chosen to hop from the amateur rank a year ago, but he has nevertheless made an agreement for a tour with Tilden that should keep the big, bad wolf from the Vines threshold for some time to come.

No better example of the modern young athlete-business man can be given than William Harold Terry, manager of the world champion Giants. Bill Terry has never permitted baseball to interfere with the furtherance of his commercial affairs in Memphis. Two days after he came back triumphantly from Washington Terry signed a five-year contract reliably understood to assure him $200,000.

Babe A Shrewd One Babe Ruth's climb up into the biggest money baseball has ever known may have been aided by the advice and assistance of his business mentor, but there is no shrewder star along the financial byways now than the celebrated Bambino. The Ruthian nest is feathered financially against any contingency, now and indefinitely.

Ruth cannot boast, as Luis Angel Firpo once did, that he still had the first dollar he earned in American rings, but he is a bigger and better business man now than he was when he was a younger and greater ball player.

WRESTLING LAST NIGHT

(By The Associated Press)

New York—Joe Savoldi, 201, Three Oaks, Mich., threw Eli Fischer, 220, New Jersey, 17-41.

Camden, N. J.—Joe Stecher, Nebraska, defeated Fred Grubmiller, Iowa, two falls to one.

Detroit—Danny MacDonald, 162, Toronto, defeated Harry Costello, 163, Boston, two falls to one.

Portland, Me.—Leo Nurma, 216, Seattle, threw Matros Kirilenko, 212, Russia, in straight falls.

Waterbury, Conn.—Mike Romano, 210, Chicago, defeated Billy Middlekauf, 230, of Gainesville, Fla., two falls to one.

PEEWEE HALFBACKS IRRITATE EMPIRE STATE OF FOOTBALL

Ted Meinhover, South Dakota's six foot, seven and three-quarter inch tackle, is "all football player," says his coach. Only three competing little half-backs sometimes plague him. Only three can "cut" him.

CHICK CHANDLER BEGINS SECOND YEAR AS MOVIE STAR.

Chick Chandler, son of Dr. George F. Chandler, is attracting the attention of motion picture reviewers, and is well on his way to stardom, according to an article which appeared in the Sunday Philadelphia Ledger. In a review under the caption, "New Stars on the Horizon," appears a picture of "Chick Chandler, nephew of the famous illustrator, Howard Chandler Christy, who begins his second year as a movie star," and the picture is accompanied by the following reference to Chick:

Do famous forbears help? Chick Chandler's father is Dr. George F. Chandler, surgeon, and founder of the New York State Constabulary; his uncle is Howard Chandler Christy, the artist; he is a grandnephew of Carl Zerran, former conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra; his grandfather founded the Boston Symphony, and his grandmother was the first woman ever honored in Who's Who and the first woman to be awarded a B. After a searching perusal he turned to his manager again.

"You're right," he said, "it is going like clockwork—every blessed thing we've sold lately has been on tick."

Dan Poling Here Friday Evening

Dr. Dan Poling, termed one of the sincerest exponents of youth and its causes will be in Kingston Friday evening of this week, as the guest of the Kingston Youth Council.

Dan Poling was born in Oregon. He first came to national attention in Ohio when before he was 30, he ran for the governorship of Ohio on the prohibition platform. The vote of his party that year rose, mainly through his personal ability and his zeal for the cause from 2,000 votes to over 48,000. He has worked with the old medium and the new to promote prohibition, its enforcement, world peace, social and industrial justice, evangelism, medical aid for the poor, a more courageous Christian Church, and has given a great deal of his time and efforts to the various civic causes which have interested him. His main interests, and the cause to which he has given the majority of his time and efforts have been identified with young people and the life of today.

A short time ago, he presented a youth program entitled "Crusade of Christ" with objectives in evangelism, world peace, and Christian Citizenship. The crusade has become the basis of young people's programs in nearly every Protestant denomination. No conception of the causes most urgently demanding Christian action has been more appealing to youth than this one "Crusade with Christ" effort.

Dr. Poling will speak at the First Dutch Reformed Church at 8:15 Friday evening. Those who wish to attend must register before coming to the church as no registrations can be sold at the church. Registrations may be made at either the Y. W. C. A. or Y. M. C. A.

Why BLUE SUNOCO offers the ideal combination of the 4 ALL-IMPORTANT FACTORS

QUICK STARTING

QUICK STARTING depends upon the presence in a motor fuel of a group of very "light" liquids. These, as they are found in unfinished gasolines, are seldom in the proper proportions and usually contain gaseous and too volatile fractions which cause power loss and vapor lock. The precision-controlled Blue Sunoco refining process retains only the desirable, easily ignited liquids in exactly the proper proportions.

ACCELERATION

BLUE SUNOCO gives brilliant acceleration because it contains exactly the right amount of "medium light" liquids selected from the multitude of hydro-carbons which compose crude oil. Precision control—an exclusive process used in manufacturing Blue Sunoco motor fuel, protects it from any deviation; resulting in what we believe you will find to be the liveliest, quietest acting, and most satisfactory motor fuel in the world.

KNOCKLESS POWER

GASOLINE must be knockless because when a motor knocks, it loses power. BLUE SUNOCO's exclusive process for the perfect control of refining heats and pressures achieves a high knockless rating by taking apart those hydro-carbons which ordinarily cause knocking, and reforming them so they burn more slowly. Therefore this motor fuel explodes less violently and delivers uniform power throughout the entire piston stroke.

LONG MILEAGE

BLUE SUNOCO's long mileage is due in the first place to its knockless power and in the second place to its exclusive manufacturing process which takes apart and rebuilds the "heavy" particles so that they actually deliver more usable energy. This plus power is responsible for plus miles per gallon. And since Blue Sunoco sells at regular gas prices, you will find it gives the utmost in economical performance.
